Speakers:

Richard Harris

Department for Business, Innovation & Skills; Assistant Director, European Reform Directorate, Product Regulation Branch.

Richard heads up the team with policy responsibility for technical regulation of a number of product sectors. The aim of the regulation being to maximise the benefits of the internal market to the UK; particularly by minimising the burdens on industry while encouraging the effective operation of the European Union internal market and providing products that provide an effective and appropriate level of safety. The product sectors Richard's team covers include LVD, R&TTE and RED. His team also has policy responsibility for the EMC Directive. Richard is actively involved in the negotiation of the European Legislation, its implementation and providing guidance to Market Surveillance for enforcement purposes, industry for compliance advice and consumers. Richard has a background in electronic engineering and worked in the industry for 11 years before joining the DTI.

Alastair McLaughlin

TUV SUD; Product Safety Specialist

Alastair is a product safety specialist for the Low Voltage Directive and a trainer for TÜV SÜD CE Marking and Designing for Compliance seminars.

Steve Hayes

EU Association of EMC Notified Bodies; Chairman

Steve is a Chartered Electrical Engineer and started his career in 1991 with TRL Technology's EMC Division having read Electronic and Communication Engineering. Having worked for many years in TRL's EMC test laboratories around the UK in test and management roles, Steve now uses this expertise to assist in the writing of International EMC standards. Steve has been involved in the preparation of standards for IEC, CISPR, ETSI and CENELEC bringing a pragmatic approach to these forums.

Steve is the current chairman of the EU Association of EMC Notified Bodies and EMC Test Labs Association. In recent years Steve has become a subject matter expert regarding CE Marking of military equipment and has written many papers on the subject and now in concentrating on new technology for the next generation of electric vehicles and infrastructure.

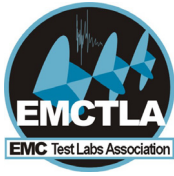

In addition to the standardisation activities detailed above, Steve heads up the EMC, radio & Safety services for TRaC and sits on the board of TRaC Global. Steve takes ultimate responsibility for four of TRaC's six sites across the UK and overseas operations.
